Central Catholic can play pretty basketball at times, when Marcus Dawkins soars through the lane, Marquis Marshall pumps in his silky jumper or Donovon Jack unleashes one of those smooth post moves.

Monday the Cards rolled up their sleeves and got tough.

They got down and dirty and played some defense, just what they needed to beat Wilson 42-34 in a Berks Conference quarterfinal before a packed house at Gov. Mifflin Intermediate.

The Cardinals stopped the streaking Bulldogs in their tracks, shutting them out in the second period and holding them scoreless during one 11 1/2-minute stretch.

The 6-9 Jack sealed off the interior and, with the help of the 6-3 Dawkins, controlled the paint, the duo combining for 19 rebounds and half-a-dozen blocked shots.

"We're lucky to have two players that can jump like that," Marshall said.

"They did a good job clogging up (the lane)," said Wilson coach Matt

With rematch in sight, Cards, Knights can't get trapped

By Mike Drago

Reading Eagle

Marquis Marshall knows that when he arrives at school today, with Central Catholic set to play tonight in a Berks Conference semifinal, all anyone will want to talk about is Friday's championship showdown with Reading High.

The Cardinals and their legion of fans have been waiting 364 days to avenge that defeat.

They 're not there yet, though.

"We still have to look at Muhlenberg," the Cards junior forward said of tonight's 6:30 tip at the Sovereign Center, the first half of a doubleheader that includes Reading High vs. Schuylkill Valley. "We can't let someone sneak up and beat us."

While both games seem one-sided they fall into the category of "trap game" for the Berks IV champion Cardinals (21-2) and the Berks I champion Red Knights (19-3).

Central is coming off a hardfought win over Wilson and looking forward to erasing the memories of that 62-57 loss to Reading on the same court a year ago.

Reading High, which has won 13 of 14, figures to breeze past Berks III champ Schuylkill Valley (18-4) and play for its fourth straight Berks championship.

It's unlikely to be as easy as all of that, of course.

"It doesn't happen if we don't win

Wednesday, right?" said Central coach Snip Esterly, checking to make sure his club hasn't drawn a bye to the final.

"We're not taking anyone lightly," Esterly said. "As long as I've been at Central I don't think we've taken anyone lightly.'

Central will be going after its sixth — and final — Berks title.

Reading High has won a record 18.

And Schuvlkill Valley?

The Panthers are playoff neophytes. They had never won a Berks quarterfinal before beating Daniel Boone Monday — they had been 0-for-8 in that round — and hadn't won a county playoff game in 35

And they've never beaten Reading High. (Of course, they've never lost to the Red Knights, either.)

"It's pretty funny that we haven't come across them," said Schuylkill Valley coach Chris Gallo, who has guided the Panthers to the Berks playoffs eight times in the last 11 years. "We've always avoided them."

There will be no hiding from them tonight. The Red Knights are bigger, faster and deeper, all of which Gallo realizes.

And as much as the Panthers enjoy getting up and down the court at a fast pace they'll have to be guarded doing that against the Knights, who can play faster.

Gallo's biggest concern is on the boards. He doesn't have a starter taller than 6-2

"They really go after the basketball," Gallo said of the Knights. "I've always been impressed with the way Reading rebounds the ball. I think their rebounding is relentless."

He knows protecting the ball against the press, and not letting the Knights score off their defense, will be key also.

"A lot of things have to go our way," he said.

Same goes for Berks II champ Muhlenberg (15-7).

Rebounding will be a key in this game, as well. The Cards controlled the glass against a physical Wilson team, with 6-9 center Donovon Jack and 6-3 Marcus Dawkins combining for 19 rebounds in the 42-34 win.

Avery Price, a 6-2 forward, averages 12 rebounds per game but he's the Muhls' tallest starter.

Reggie Weiss, the former Central coach, will have to come up with some magic to prevent the presumed championship rematch.

Esterly, a former Weiss assistant, is certain not to let his guard down.

"They play Reggie-ball," he said of the Muhls, who have won five straight. "They have three really nice players who can score. They'll play great defense, they'll move the ball, take 45 seconds off the clock ... they've got a nice ballclub, (but) we'll be ready.'

Donovon Jack had a big night, too, with a game-high 19 points and 17 rebounds.

"They played very well," Miller said. "They knocked down shots that they haven't been knocking down

"As the momentum went their way, they kept knocking them down."

The Cards will wrap up their regular season tonight, against Tulpehocken at Albright's Bollman Center. A win gives them a second straight perfect run through Berks IV; they wrapped up their 16th Berks IV title a night earlier by beating Holy Name.

Concerns they wouldn't be ready to go, after an emotional battle against the Blue Jays Monday, never materialized.

'They were ready to play," said Cards coach Snip Esterly. "We're looking a little sharper. I think the kids are starting to focus.'

Cards don't look ahead until after beating Muhls

Muhl i n g High.

"I rarely ever look in the stands or look around," Central's 6-9 center said. "I was focused on the game."

This is the kind of tunnel vision coach Snip Esterly wanted from his players. Before the Red Knights could be on the radar, Central had to push aside Muhlenberg.

The Cardinals did it with the relative ease everyone expected. They knocked off the Muhls 57-35 in the Berks Conference semifinal game at the Sovereign Center Wednesday night.

Central (22-2) will get its shot at Reading High for the county championship Friday at the Sovereign Center at 8 p.m. The Knights eliminated Schuylkill Valley 83-69 in the other semifinal Wednesday.

While it's understandable to think the Cardinals could get caught looking ahead to a showdown against the city rival that ousted them in last year's Berks semis, they were too experienced to fall into that trap.

There was only one anxious moment Wednesday night.

Muhlenberg used an 11-0 run to pull within 28-25 with 4:52 left in the third quarter. It was enough to make one briefly wonder if Reggie Weiss could coach the Muhls to a huge upset.

"We took two or three quick shots and we got out of rhythm," Esterly said. "They banged home two or three 3s and it changes just like that."

The trepidation proved fleeting.

Central called a timeout, reasserted itself on defense and executed better on offense. The Berks IV champs closed the third quarter with a 16-3 run to regain control and held Muhlenberg to two field goals over the final

It was a reminder that this is a poised group. Central has four starters back from the team that won the District 3-A title and was a PIAA finalist last season.

"We just had to calm down," Jack said. "We got our momentum back. That helped us the most and got us going again."

Joey Rys played a major role as Central regrouped. The senior point guard hit a 3-pointer to halt Muhlenberg's surge and made two layups to spark the Cardinals' responding run.

Esterly said Rys is just starting to feel comfortable after a hip infection kept him off the court for a month and forced him to ease into the season. That's a good sign for the Cardinals' playoff hopes.

Muhlenberg (15-8), which needed to be perfect to prevail, was flawed for that stretch. It left Rys open on the perimeter, failed to cover the back door on his first lavup and failed to get back on defense for his fast break hoop.

"Little things like that in these kinds of games will kill you," Weiss said. "You don't need everything to go right, but you need a lot of things to go right."

Muhlenberg's biggest problem was Jack. The Muhls, with no starter taller than 6-2, had no one to guard Central's polished junior.

The Berks II champs tried to play Jack straight up and use a second player to collapse on him when he got the ball.

It wasn't enough. Jack made 8-of-11 shots, scored a game-high 21 points and had nine rebounds. Muhlenberg was simply continued on page 29

"Any time we did get in there it was rough going for us," Coldren said. "I think we were a little intimidated by Donovon Jack. Once he blocked one or two shots I think we just settled for jumpers, and that's not our thing."

The Cards had trouble scoring themselves as the Berks I runner-up Bulldogs (18-5) sealed off the inside, limiting Jack's touches. They also prevented Dawkins from getting any easy baskets on breakaways.

Central had just 16 points at halftime. That was enough for a sixpoint cushion, one they maintained for most of the rest of the way as they slowed the Bulldogs with their effective 2-3 match-up zone.

Dawkins was especially engaged, apparently relishing the opportunity to go head-to-head with Wilson star Zach Zweizig throughout. Dawkins played a big part in limiting Zweizig to just seven points on 3-of-12 shooting.

Dawkins also sparked the offense with a team-high 15 points and five

Despite the extended scoring drought Wilson was still within 16-13 when Seth Klein hit a 3-pointer 2 1/2 minutes into the third quarter.

Dawkins answered with a threepoint play, then closed the quarter with a 3-pointer for a nine-point

"It's playoff time for Marcus," Central coach Snip Esterly said. "He's ready. He's ready."

In the opener, Muhlenberg struggled to find open shots against Tulpehocken's stingy 1-3-1 zone but stayed afloat because of the hot shooting of Botch.

He knocked down five of his first six 3s on the way to a game- and career-high 24 points. He had 18 of Muhlenberg's 24 first-half points.

"Give credit to Botch," said Tulpehocken (12-10) coach Kevin Quimby. "He made shots. We didn't expect that."

Botch had never made more than three in a game before. "I've just been waiting to get my opportunities all season to show what I could do," said the 5-9 junior. "My shot was falling tonight and I just kept going with it."

Despite Botch's shooting the short-handed Trojans, playing without two of their top six players, staved in it.

They tied it at 37 when Derek Stephan hit the first of two free throws with 5:28 left.

Christian Burgraff, who had just one basket for the Muhls in the first three quarters, got hot at the right time, answering with a pair of midrange jumpers to push the lead to Botch helped keep it there, converting a pair of one-and-ones in the final minute.

"Give credit to Kevin and his kids," Muhls coach Reggie Weiss said of his former player, "they were into the game."

Central is headed to the county final for the first time since winning the championship in 2006.

The Cardinals finally can look ahead to Reading High.

"If we wouldn't have come to play today, there would have been no Friday," Esterly said. "These kids are sharp. They know.'

Their reward is the rematch they've longed to play.
